NEW QUESTION: 1
Your customer completes four production orders on a daily basis. One of the production orders has quality problems on some finished-good items. The requirements for this situation are:
i) Isolate the defective material from the regular production order output.
ii) The system should prevent this material from being included in external customer order shipments.
What setup or process can achieve these objectives?
A. Define the lot number as a rejected lot. Store this lot in an isolated subinventory.
B. Enable serial control for the item. Store the serial control item in a separate subinventory that prevents customer shipment.
C. Enable lot control for the item. Store the lot in an isolated subinventory.
D. Enable lot control for the item. Assign material status that disallows shipping transactions.
E. Create a reject locator. Move the items to this locator that prevents customer shipment.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 3
Note: this question is part of a series of questions that use the same or similar answer choices. An answer choice may be correct for more than one question in the series. Each question is independent of the other questions in the series.
Information and details provided in a question apply only to that question.
You are developing and application to track customer sales.
You need to create an object that meets the following requirements:
- Run managed code packaged in an assembly that was created in the Microsoft.NET Framework and uploaded in Microsoft SQL Server.
- Run written a transaction and roll back if a future occurs.
- Run when a table is created or modified.
What should you create?
A. DML trigger
B. user-defined procedure
C. table-valued function
D. scalar-valued function
E. DDL trigger
F. extended procedure
G. CLR procedure
Answer: G
Explanation:
The common language runtime (CLR) is the heart of the Microsoft
.NET Framework and provides the execution environment for all
.NET Framework code. Code that runs within the CLR is referred to as managed code.
With the CLR hosted in Microsoft SQL Server (called CLR integration), you can author stored procedures, triggers, user-defined functions, user-defined types, and user-defined aggregates in managed code. Because managed code compiles to native code prior to execution, you can achieve significant performance increases in some scenarios.
