NEW QUESTION: 1

How is authentication implemented in GSM?

- A. Out-of-band verification
- B. Using public key cryptography
- C. Using secret key cryptography
- D. It is not implemented in GSM

Answer: C

Explanation:

Authentication is effected in GSM through the use of a common secret key, Ks, that is stored in the network operator's

Authentication

Center (AuC) and in the subscriber's SIM card. The SIM card may be in the subscriber's laptop, and the subscriber is not privy to Ks. To begin the authentication exchange, the home location of the subscriber's mobile station, (MS), generates a 128-bit random number (RAND) and sends it to the MS. Using an algorithm that is known to both the AuC and MS, the RAND is encrypted by both parties using the secret key, Ks. The ciphertext generated at the MS is then sent to the AuC and compared with the ciphertext generated by the AuC. If the two results match, the MS is authenticated and the access request is granted. If they do not match, the access request is denied. The other answers are, therefore, incorrect.
