NEW QUESTION: 2
A company sales manager received a memo from the company's financial department which stated that the company would not be putting its software products through the same security testing as previous years to reduce the research and development cost by 20 percent for the upcoming year.
The memo also stated that the marketing material and service level agreement for each product would remain unchanged. The sales manager has reviewed the sales goals for the upcoming year and identified an increased target across the software products that will be affected by the financial department's change. All software products will continue to go through new development in the coming year. Which of the following should the sales manager do to ensure the company stays out of trouble?
A. Contact senior finance management and provide background information
B. Consult the company's legal department on practices and law
C. Seek industry outreach for software practices and law
D. Discuss the issue with the software product's user groups
Answer: B
Explanation:
To ensure that the company stays out of trouble, the sales manager should enquire about the legal ramifications of the change by consulting with the company's legal department, particularly as the marketing material is not being amended.
Incorrect Answers:
A: The software product's user groups would not have insight on the legal ramifications of the change by the company, and they might not have knowledge of the service-level agreements or any contracts that the company has with other customers.
C: The sales manager does not have additional background information to provide.
D: Legal information pertaining to internal operations should be obtained from the company's legal department.
