NEW QUESTION: 1

Amazon Kinesis Data Streams (KDS) shards are the basic units of data processing. Each shard is processed by exactly one Kinesis Client Library (KCL) worker and has exactly one corresponding record processor, so you never need multiple instances to process one shard. However, one worker can process any number of shards, so it's fine if the number of shards exceeds the number of instances.

When you create a Kinesis Data Stream, you specify the number of shards. You can also specify the number of instances. The number of instances must be greater than or equal to the number of shards. If you specify a number of instances that is less than the number of shards, the stream will be in an `INCONSISTENT` state.

Which of the following is the correct number of instances to create for a Kinesis Data Stream with 4 shards?

- A. 0
- B. 1
- C. 2
- D. 3

Answer: D

Explanation:

Typically, when you use the KCL, you should ensure that the number of instances does not exceed the number of shards (except for failure standby purposes). Each shard is processed by exactly one KCL worker and has exactly one corresponding record processor, so you never need multiple instances to process one shard. However, one worker can process any number of shards, so it's fine if the number of shards exceeds the number of instances.
